*P3a Description: (Describe resource and its major elements. Include design, materials, condition, alterations, size, setting, and boundaries)

The single family residential building is a wooden, single-story, single family residence designed on a rectangular plan in a Bungalow style. Bungalows became extremely popular as housing pressures grew in California during the 1920s and teens. This residence is true to the bungalow style, which is characterized by the square plans, broad gables, a low-pitched roof and wide overhanging eaves. The most distinctive feature of the style is the double, front-facing gable seen at the facade roofline. Wooden slated vents are contained below the gables. The roof is sheathed in composition roofing. The structure contains double hung windows along the sides (north and south) with tripartite windows bisected by narrow mullions on the upper sash. The two square porch columns are battered and are covered in shiplap siding. The small front porch has been enclosed with newer type windows. The front door is centered, and is wood paneled to match the windows. The structure contains a partial above basement.

There is a one-car garage with a gable roof, with a later added attached storage shed in the rear. Access to the garage is from Fremont Street. There are two older oak trees along the Fremont Street frontage. The front yard contains a front lawn, an older hedge rose and mature rose bushes. The rear yard contains a vegetable garden and large silk tree.

The subject property is located within the Old Quad. The Assessor's microfiche for 1990 listed the year built date on this as 1910.

The house was built by Antone and Francisco Farfan, carpenters from Spain c. 1910. The property was owned and resided in by Antone and Aurora Farfan from 1910 - 1926. Mr. Farfan was a carpenter and built many similar houses in the area with his brother Francisco. Owners are unknown from 1927 - 1928, but was occupied by Clyde and Norine Kimrey and Ellis S. and Beth Wells. Both Clyde Kimrey and Ellis Wells were carpenters. From 1929 - 1931 J. P. Cirincione owned the house. The property was owned by Blue and Henrietta Meyer from 1932 - 1933. Mr. Meyer was involved with operation and ownership of a gas station and car dealership on the Alameda in Jose. In 1934 the house was occupied by F. D. Clift. From 1935 - 1964 Mrs. Lydia S. Nichols owned and live in the house. Mrs. Nichols was the widow of Robert Nichols and she taught music. Owner unknown from 1964 - 1968. From 1968 - 2003 Edwin a. and Dawn F. Kennedy were the owners. There were many renters. Mrs. Kennedy was the daughter of Antone Farfan. Daniel and Joan Meacham who currently reside at this residence purchased the house in 2003.

The building exhibits the style that typifies a Bungalow Cottage in design. The building appears unaltered from its original form. The architectural style of the residence places probably construction dates in the 1900 - 10s. The building is in good condition (other than needing paint) and retains its integrity to its original design and construction. The building is representative of the development of the Old Quad area during this time and is important to the integrity of the historic area in which it is located. The design is consistent with the workman's cottage architecture. It would not appear to qualify for the National Register of Historic Places based on criteria C individually, but contributes to a potentially eligible district. The building would therefore not appear to be eligible for the National Register under criteria A or B. The residence is consistent with other local architecturally or historically significant properties and is similar to resources on the City Inventory.
